Discover how each stroke of handwriting reveals the personality of the writer. Graphoanalysis is a scientific method of personality assessment based on research that was carried out by both empirical and clinical processes. Handwriting reveals intelligence, achievement, potential, emotional stability, sociability, aptitudes (basic vocational), fears and defenses, and imagination. Business executives, health professionals, attorneys, police, credit managers, and even parents hoping to better understand their children all use it. Graphoanalysis is dedicated to human understanding and happiness.

Instructor Spotlight: Sandra Marczak

Sandy was introduced to Graphoanalysis and took the 8 Basic Steps class through Great Basin College over 22 years ago. (Of course it was not called GBC then, but Northern Nevada Community College.) Dorothy Jackson was the instructor, and Sandy feels very fortunate to have learned from the best. Dorothy was a Master Graphoanalyst and a published columnist in many newspapers around the country. Sandy says she knew instantly, while reading about the class, that it was the class for her. She went on to become certified through the International Graphoanalysis Society of America (IGAS) in 1990. The study of Graphoanalysis really changed her life. Sandy's dream to teach Graphoanalysis at the college became a reality in 2009, when her good friend and colleague Joan Zunino, retired from teaching the class and turned it over to her. Sandy is passionate about handwriting analysis and looks forward to many more years of sharing her knowledge through Continuing Education classes at GBC!

Saturday, 3/19 9–11a.m.
HTC 110 $25.00 Coralee Griswold
After developing your chart you will bring it to class where you will be aided in the use of internet resources. This is a hands-on class, and you will be introduced to several different sites to further develop your research. Some knowledge of the Internet is helpful but not required. Following this class you will be able to explore many of these sites at your own leisure.

Instructor Spotlight: Coralee Griswold

Coralee is a fifth generation Nevadan, spent her youth on a remote ranch in White Pine County. She has been in and around the Elko community, through shopping, family, and social links since youth. Coralee earned a degree in Nursing at Northern Nevada Community College (now Great Basin College) followed by a bachelor's of science degree from the University of Nevada, Reno.

An avid researcher, she was led to genealogy when her grandmother handed her letters, dating from the late 1880's. "From relatives," her grandmother explained, then went on, "one was written to my father from his mother when he was 21, explaining that his father was really his stepfather AND his first cousin, therefore sharing the same surname."

At this point, Griswold said her brain struggled to make sense of the questions that were forming around her. The names were not familiar, and her grandmother did not know all the individuals written about in the letters. This is when Griswold was irreparably hooked on genealogical research.

Coralee states, "The more one researches, the more one finds themselves continually looking for names, dates and places; looking feverishly through records at various libraries, courthouses, graveyards, and through internet databases. The more one finds, the harder one will dig for their own family history."

Griswold's emphasis of research has been within the United States. She also has some experience in Canadian, Irish and Italian records. She is most known for her work with the Griswold Family Association. Griswold has authored and edited: The Griswold Family: 12 Generations in England; and The Griswold Family, The Sixth & Seventh Generation.

You have projects...lots of them. Consider this definition of a project: “A non-routine series of task directed toward a goal.” (Snead & Wycoff, 1997).

Or, maybe you'd rather think about David Allen's definition: “A project is anything that takes two or more steps to complete.” Whew! That puts it into perspective, doesn't it?

I'll say it again: You have lots of projects. I'll also wager this: You could use some help managing those projects. This workshop will offer you structures and strategies for conceptualizing and completing your projects.

“Hunks, Chunks, and Bites: Managing Your Small & Large Projects” is for people who have projects that they want to complete and are a bit frustrated by not getting them completed—and who may not be sure why they aren't getting them completed (or even started!)

Note: This workshop is not for someone who is trying to build a building or plan a national convention for 50,000 attendees. It's for people who need (and want) to

- Design a website
- Hire an assistant
- Help a child apply for college
- Market a booklet
- Get more members for an association
- De-clutter their home, office, and/or garage
- Write a dissertation, thesis, or book

And the like...

Sound similar to some of your projects (that aren't quite done)? Then take part in “Hunks, Chunks, and Bites” so you can design and manage these projects right to completion.

1. Have you (and everyone else you know) 'had it' with email?
2. Does the time you spend on email increase, no matter what you do?
3. Are you feeling bombarded by information—some of which you want and some of which you do NOT want?
4. Is your #1 task for the day sometimes not completed...yet you've dealt your incoming emails?
5. Do you actually love email and various web-based tools and want to be a power user instead of “dabbling” in it?

Well, then you would be wise to be part of the upcoming session with Dr. Meggin McIntosh, “The Ph.D. of Productivity™.” She will teach you “Seven Sane and Sensible Practices (So You Control Your Digital Deluge Instead of It Controlling You!)” The Seven Sane and Sensible Practices all include words beginning with “D:” determine, delete, decide, defer, defend, devalue, deploy. You may think you know what to do, but, if you answered ‘yes’ to any of the 5 questions above, you don't...at least not yet.

Here's what participants in this fast-paced, practical workshop can expect to learn:

- How to decrease the amount of time you spend on email by at least 50%;
- How to increase the clarity of your communication, thereby amplifying your own and others' productivity; and
- How to maximize your sense of satisfaction about your workday.
- How to amplify your brain's resources to better complete your work...peacefully. Predictably, and productively.
