

Great Basin Indian Archives

Our Goals:

- To preserve priceless resources and family treasures
- To bring untold stories to light
- To interpret and identify current and new collections
- To encourage reluctant learners
- To support academic research and investigation
- To provide website links to existing primary source collections
- To build website and community collections

Our Plan:

Phase I — THE VIRTUAL LINKING ARCHIVES: providing links to collections regarding Great Basin Indian peoples within California, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and other related areas. The latter four straddle the Great Basin geographical region. California and Colorado include home-sites and traveling routes of the Great Basin peoples. They are also home to three main federal repositories holding documents relevant to the Great Basin peoples. Links to other states and countries will be developed through student and community work.

Phase II — PRIMARY SOURCE MATERIALS GATHERING: generated by individuals and organizations having direct lineage or interaction with Great Basin Indians. Collection can include personal or organizational records, rare books, manuscripts, videos or films, photographs, oral histories, and other materials supporting research into all facets of the heritage of the Great Basin Indian people. Phase II also provides educational opportunities and guidance for personal projects and research. Materials will be digitally scanned or photographed and returned to the holder. Requests to maintain confidentiality will be honored.
